

About the Contributors

Dr Vito Breda is the Research Leader of the Comparative Law Group in the School of Law and Justice at the University of Southern Queensland. He previously held a tenured position at Cardiff University and retains an adjunct chair at the University of Deusto. His research focuses on the constitutional recognition of identity claims and regionalism. The list of his publications includes work in the Journal for the Semiotic of Law, the European Law Journal, the Modern Law Review and Res Publica.

Associate Professor Sean Brennan is the Director of the Gilbert + Tobin Centre of Public Law at the Faculty of Law, University of New South Wales. He teaches, writes and researches mainly in the areas of constitutional law, native title, land rights and other Indigenous legal issues. Since 1994 he has worked with a variety of national and regional Aboriginal organisations. He is an author of many submissions, articles, chapters and books, including Blackshield and Williams Australian Constitutional Law and Theory (6th ed, 2014) and Treaty (2005), and co-editor of Native Title From Mabo to Akiba: A Vehicle for Change and Empowerment? (2015).

Professor Jennifer Corrin is an Australian Research Council Future Fellow and Director of Comparative Law in the Centre for Public, International and Comparative Law at the TC Beirne School of Law, University of Queensland (UQ). Jennifer's research focuses on law reform and development in plural legal regimes. She is collaborating in a Canadian-funded international project on legal pluralism, and is part of an interdisciplinary team working on environmental issues in Solomon Islands, funded by the MacArthur Foundation. She is also conducting ARC-funded research relating to the international border region between Australia and Papua New Guinea. Jennifer is Co-Convenor of the UQ Solomon Islands Partnership which promotes and coordinates international academic interests in the Solomon Islands. Her publications include Courts and Civil Procedure in the South Pacific (3rd ed, 2016) and Introduction to South Pacific Law (4th ed, forthcoming). Before joining UQ, Jennifer spent six years at the University of the South Pacific, and nine years in her own legal firm in Solomon Islands.

Professor Jonathan Crowe is Professor of Law at Bond University and the current President of the Australian Society of Legal Philosophy. He has published widely on legal theory and constitutional law, including recent articles in the Sydney Law Review, the Federal Law Review and the Melbourne University Law Review. His books include Legal Theory (2nd ed, 2014), Principles of International Humanitarian Law (2013) and Australian Constitutional Law: Foundations and Theory (3rd ed, 2012).

Professor Megan Davis is the Director of the Indigenous Law Centre at the Faculty of Law, University of New South Wales, an Acting Commissioner of the NSW Land and Environment Court, a Fellow of the Australian Academy of Law and a member of the NSW Sentencing Council. She is also the Chair and an expert member of the United Nations Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues. Megan was appointed to the Prime Minister's Expert Panel on the Recognition of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Peoples in the Constitution (in 2011) and to the Referendum Council (in 2016).

Dr Benjamin F Gussen is a lecturer in the University of Southern Queensland School of Law and Justice. He is an expert on the principle of subsidiarity and its application in unitary and federal polities. His PhD thesis was on the application of subsidiarity as a constitutional principle in New Zealand, and in it he argued that the Treaty of Waitangi should afford the indigenous population a wide margin of legislative and administrative autonomy. Benjamin's other research interests include the amelioration of Australian federalism, the application of constitutional economics to constitutional designs, the comparative analysis of sub-national constitutions, and the application of complexity theory to the analysis of legal pluralism. Benjamin holds graduate degrees in law, economics, engineering, business administration and education.

Dr Jennifer (Jen) Hendry is an Associate Professor in Law & Social Justice at the University of Leeds School of Law. She researches in the areas of legal and social theory, and comparative socio-legal studies, with a particular focus on legal pluralism, legal culture and spatial justice. Jen has been a visiting fellow at the University of Sydney (2011) and a visiting scholar at the University of Arizona James E Rogers College of Law (2015), and is a principal investigator on a World Universities Network funded interdisciplinary international research network that focuses on 'Spaces of Indigenous Justice'. She is a member of the senior editorial board of the German Law Journal and the executive of the UK Socio-Legal Studies Association (SLSA).

Dr Nicky Jones holds a BA (Hons), LLB (Hons) and a PhD in French and Law from the University of Queensland (UQ), as well as a Licence ès Lettres Modernes (Mention FLE) from the University of Orléans, France. In 2001, Nicky worked as a research consultant for the Indigenous Rights in the Commonwealth project, based at UQ and the Commonwealth Policy Studies Unit, University of London. After finishing her law degree, Nicky worked as associate for the Hon Justice Margaret McMurdo AC, President of the Court of Appeal in Queensland. Following this, she worked in private practice and at Crown Law in Brisbane before taking up her current position at the University of Southern Queensland.

Ambelin Kwaymullina is an Aboriginal academic who comes from the Palyku people of the Pilbara region of Western Australia. Ambelin is a Lecturer at the Faculty of Law at the University of Western Australia, where she teaches Indigenous Peoples and the Law, and Administrative Law. Ambelin's research interests include Indigenous knowledge and legal systems; cultural appropriation and copyright; and public law and Indigenous peoples. Ambelin is also a novelist and illustrator.

Professor Sharon Mascher teaches in the Faculty of Law in the University of Calgary and is an Honorary Fellow at the University of Western Australia. Sharon has previously held positions at Thompson Rivers University's Faculty of Law and the University of Western Australia's Faculty of Law. Her research is focused at the intersections of climate change law, environmental law, property law and laws affecting Indigenous peoples, and she is the co-editor of the Journal of Environmental Law and Practice. Sharon is currently conducting research on the effect of the recent Supreme Court of Canada decisions relating to Aboriginal title and rights on environmental impact assessment processes in Canada.

Dr Jennifer Nielsen is an Associate Professor in the School of Law and Justice at Southern Cross University. Her research applies critical race and whiteness studies through a theoretical framework informed by Indigenous knowledges and philosophies on colonialism, self-determination, whiteness and racism. Her work seeks to expose normative standards inherent in mainstream Australian law that privilege 'white' interests in preference to those of Australian Indigenous peoples, and other 'non-white' groups.

Dr Jeremy Patrick is a Lecturer at the University of Southern Queensland School of Law and Justice. He has law degrees from the University of Nebraska (JD), University of Toronto (LLM) and York University (PhD). He specialises in law and religion and constitutional law, and has published in American, Canadian and Australian journals. His book Freedom of Religion at the Margins: Fortune-telling, Witchcraft, and Individual Spiritualities is under contract with the University of British Columbia Press.

Professor Melissa L Tatum, Research Professor of Law, University of Arizona James E Rogers College of Law, has worked in Indian country for two decades. She specialises in issues involving tribal courts and tribal governments, particularly with respect to jurisdiction and how tribal justice systems relate to the federal and State systems. Professor Tatum also works in issues of law, culture and identity. She is the co-author of Structuring Sovereignty: Constitutions of Native Nations and Law, Culture & Environment, and a contributing author to the 2005 edition of Cohen's Handbook of Federal Indian Law, the leading treatise in the field. In addition to her academic work, Professor Tatum served as an appellate judge on the Southwest Intertribal Court of Appeals and has more than 15 years' experience training tribal judges, law enforcement officers, victim advocates and attorneys.

ABOUT THE CONTRIBUTORS

Dr Asmi Wood is an academic adviser to the College of Law at the Australian National University (ANU) and is a Senior Lecturer. He completed his PhD in 2011. He received the Vice Chancellor's Award for Teaching Excellence from the ANU in 2010 and won the National Award in 2015. He is a member of the National Indigenous Research and Knowledges Network.

Professor Simon Young is based at the University of Southern Queensland and is an Adjunct Professor at the University of Western Australia. He previously worked at UWA (2005-2014), Queensland University of Technology (1996-2005) and with a national law firm (1992-1996). He specialises in the areas of Indigenous law and policy (particularly native title) and public law (particularly administrative law) – publishing books in those fields in 1997, 2001, 2007 and 2008 – and articles in Australian, Canadian and UK journals. He has worked in many capacities with various government agencies (in Australia and Canada), non-government organisations, Law Reform Commissions, courts and tribunals, law firms, barristers and journalists.

Acknowledgments

Reproduction of the Constitution extract

The extract from The Constitution (as amended) is based on content sourced from the Federal Register of Legislation, <<https://www.legislation.gov.au/Browse/ByTitle/Constitution/InForce#top>> at 3 June 2016, as permitted under Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International. For the latest information on Australian Government law please go to <<https://www.legislation.gov.au>>.

Reproduction of extract from the Expert Panel Report

The extract from Recognising Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Peoples in the Constitution – Report of the Expert Panel (Commonwealth of Australia, January 2012) is reproduced with permission of the Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet. Copyright in the Report is held by the Commonwealth of Australia under Creative Commons: Attribution – Non Commercial – No Derivs 3.0 Australia, available at: <<https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-nd/3.0/au/legalcode>>.

Reproduction of extract from the Act of Recognition Review Panel Report

The extract from The Hon John Anderson AO, Ms Tanya Hosch and Mr Richard Eccles, Final Report of the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Act of Recognition Review Panel (Commonwealth of Australia, September 2014) is reproduced with permission of the Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet. Copyright in the Report is held by the Commonwealth of Australia under Creative Commons: Attribution 3.0 Australia, available at: <<https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/3.0/au/legalcode>>.

Reproduction of extract from the Joint Select Committee on Constitutional Recognition of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Peoples: Final Report

The extract from the Joint Select Committee on Constitutional Recognition of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Peoples: Final Report (Commonwealth of Australia, June 2015) is reproduced with permission of the Clerk of the Senate, Australian Senate, Parliament House, Canberra.